JUAN CARLOS - ITALY TRIP 2016

"After ten days in Italy I have learned of the immense need for youth discipleship and multiplication of the gospel. Only 4% of Italians are born again believers, and even at such small numbers there is minimal focus to reach the next generation with the gospel. I was able to serve with a local ministry - Into The Wilderness - that is run by missionaries and lead by Italians. Joel (a co-worker) and I met with one of his contacts from Bulgaria, Pesho.

During the first half of our time there we trained a handful of Italians to do safe and high standardized rock climbing camps for this summer.

The second half of our trip we spent up in the Alps. They are beautiful, to say the least. We went deeper with outdoor theology classes and how to lead kids in the wilderness with an emphasis on sharing the gospel and multiplying disciples among the local Italians. There is work to do in this culture in regards to vision and discipleship, but we have found a solid strong-hold of believers. After having deep conversations, there is a future in reaching the next generations with the Gospel of Jesus Christ."
